Qualifications: The most important qualification any elected official in our federal government should possess is a thorough understanding of the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence and the role of the Constitution in establishing a limited and republican form of government. I understand these documents as they were originally intended — from the perspective of the founding fathers. I understand that as we adhere to these principles we will ensure "the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity," as we ignore them, misunderstand them or try and re-interpret them, we will continue the gradual loss of liberty that currently prevails. I understand that "Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed" to protect those "inalienable rights" "endowed by our creator," not solve our problems, redistribute the wealth or protect us from ourselves. I understand that "We the people" means that the government shouldn't poses powers the individual doesn't possess. I understand that "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people." I understand that it is "In God we trust" not the government. These are my qualifications.
